With Midsize Firm Combos on The Rise, Trust and Estates Boutique Joins New York Firm

New York midsize firm McLaughlin & Stern said Wednesday it's acquired a local trust and estates boutique, Krass, Snow & Schmutter, continuing an ongoing trend of boutique and small firm combinations.

In all, four of the boutique's six total attorneys on staff in partner or of counsel positions will join McLaughlin & Sterm, the firms announced. Founders Stephen Krass and Lee A. Snow will join as partners and Paul C. de Freitas and Walter W. Regel will join as of counsel.

McLaughlin & Stern, a New York-founded firm with about 110 lawyers, praised Krass Snow for being "nationally recognized for its depth in private client work" and said the additional expertise will help the firm's practice in Florida as well.

Geoffry Handler, managing partner of McLaughlin & Stern, said in a Wednesday interview that the addition of Krass Snow's practice will bolster his firm's practice in areas including estate and trust planning as well as other related fields, both in and out of New York.

"We have a very strong trusts and estates department, and these guys complement it," Handler said. "We've expanded our trust and estates practice to Florida, and these guys have a lot of Florida clients, so it just made sense."

Handler said the acquisition had "a lot of synergy" to it in that Krass Snow historically went to outside counsel for matters such as litigation, but as a part of McLaughlin & Stern, its attorneys will have access to resources and talent in-house to help them serve their clients.

He declined to comment on the specific revenue of Krass Snow but said it was "fairly substantial."

The acquisition follows an ongoing trend of boutique buyups by midsize firms, a type of combination which rose by 21% in the first half of 2025, according to research by consultancy Fairfax Associates.

Midsize law firms have been acquiring boutiques of fewer than 20 attorneys at a significant rate, according to Fairfax Associates' research on law firm mergers in the second quarter of 2025. In a public statement on that research, Fairfax Associates said that 75% of mergers in that quarter involved "at least one firm with between 5 and 20 lawyers," a category which would include Krass Snow.

Krass said in a Wednesday statement on the deal that he and his team were interested in the move to access "broader resources and interdisciplinary support" while still being able to provide individual attention and responsiveness to their existing clients.

"We're thrilled to be part of a firm that not only shares our values but has the scale and talent to allow us to represent our clients more fully," Krass said.

Zuckerman Legal Group Joins the New York Law Scene, Focusing on Criminal Defense, Title IX Cases

Criminal defense attorney Seth Zuckerman has founded his own boutique firm, with Zuckerman Legal Group opening its doors earlier this month.

The firm will focus on four practice areas: white-collar criminal defense, traditional criminal defense, Title IX university misconduct proceedings and some civil litigation.

Zuckerman said he is looking forward to "aggressively" advocating for his clients on his own terms and continuing to be available around the clock.

"I wanted to provide a level of advocacy and service to my clients that I got to control," he said when asked about the decision to hang out his own shingle.

"I like to joke that I'm half attorney, half psychiatrist, because I'm there for my clients and can relate to what they're going through," he remarked.

Zuckerman Legal Group will soon be hiring associates, he added. The practice debuted on July 1, with an office at 14 Penn Plaza in Manhattan.

Born in Long Island, Zuckerman is a graduate of the University of Michigan and Brooklyn Law School.

He began his legal career as an intern in the Brooklyn District Attorney's Office, where he later nabbed a job as Assistant District Attorney. Zuckerman then moved to Coz- » Page 4

Democrats Leave Senate Judiciary Hearing as Republicans Advance Bove's Nomination

BY AVALON ZOPPO

REPUBLICANS on the Senate Judiciary Committee voted to advance to the full Senate the controversial nomination of Emil Bove to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit on Thursday as the minority Democrats walked out in protest.

Emil Bove

After Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, and the panel's committee's chair, directed the clerk to call votes, Democratic Sen. Cory Booker shouted over roll call and pleaded for Grassley to acknowledge his request for more debate time on the nomination under committee rules.

"We're simply asking about a credible amount of time to air our concerns before the vote," said Booker, of New Jersey.

"You're violating your own rules," he added. "This is outrageous that you're not allowing senators to have their fair say before a controversial nominee is being done."

While Booker shouted, Grassley called the senator "out of order" and admonished him for interrupting the voting, which the chair had called after senators on both sides spent about an hour voicing their views.

Bove, a U.S. Justice Department official and former Trump defense attorney, has faced opposition not only from Democrats but also former judges and prosecutors concerned by accusations that Bove participated in a quid pro quo deal to drop corruption charges against New York City mayor Eric Adams, as well as recent whistleblower claims.

"What is another half an hour to allow senators to be heard?" Booker said.

"It's what the Constitution mandates," he added. "It's the ideals of the United States Senate: The world's most deliberative body should take a decent amount of time to deliberate. But… here we are jamming this » Page 4

Trump Administration Fires SDNY Prosecutor Maurene Comey

BY EMILY SAUL

MAURENE Comey, a veteran prosecutor in the Southern District of New York, was abruptly fired on Wednesday, the New York Law Journal and Law.com have confirmed.

The reason given for Comey's termination is not immediately clear. The New York Times reported she was dismissed via a letter citing Article II of the U.S. Constitution. Article II vests executive power in the presidency.

Politico reported that the decision did not come from Clayton. A Justice Department spokesperson responded to questions with the statement "no comment on personnel." White House Press Secretary Karoline Leavitt referred questions to the DOJ.

Comey is the daughter for former FBI director James Comey and has worked on high-profile sex crimes cases including Sean "Diddy" Combs, Ghislaine Maxwell and late financier Jeffrey Epstein.

She could not be immediately reached for comment.

In a message to colleagues on Thursday and first reported by Politico, Maurene Comey wrote that "fear is the tool of the tyrant."

SDNY Antitrust Class Action Alleges Unlawful Pro Sports Trading Cards Monopoly

BY SULAIMAN ABDUR-RAHMAN

DICELLO Levitt has filed an antitrust class action in Manhattan federal court alleging digital sports platform Fanatics Inc. has acquired and maintained an unlawful monopoly in the market for MLB, NFL and NBA professional player trading cards in violation of federal and state law.

"Defendants' anticompetitive scheme has already reduced output and competition, and thereby artificially inflated prices, in the market for Pro Sports Trading Cards," according to the allegations in the complaint filed Monday in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York.

FANATICS INC.

Following acquisitions in 2021 and 2022, Fanatics Inc. became the exclusive producer of fully licensed MLB player trading cards.

"Plaintiff and members of the proposed Classes have been injured by paying these artificially inflated prices and will continue to be injured in the future until the alleged unlawful conduct ends," DiCello Levitt partner Gregory Asciolla and co-counsel wrote in the complaint.

The lawsuit names the MLB, NBA and NFL as co-defendants but primarily involves claims accusing Fanatics of Sherman Act violations.

Fanatics made key acquisitions in 2021 and 2022 to become the exclusive manufacturer of fully licensed MLB player trading cards, according to the complaint.

DiCello Levitt on behalf of plaintiff Phillip Jones and members of the proposed class seek injunctive relief stopping Fanatics' alleged anticompetitive conduct plus treble damages, disgorgement of profits and restitution.

"This copycat complaint is nothing more than a rehash of baseless allegations similar to the earlier filed groundless lawsuits," a Fanatics Collectibles spokesperson said Tuesday in a statement. "It is fundamentally flawed in numerous respects, and we look forward to presenting to the court how we continuously elevate » Page 4

Law Firms Usher in New Regional Leadership Amid Shift Toward Shorter Terms

BY SAMSON AMORE

AT LEAST seven Am Law 200 firms have appointed new regional leaders in recent weeks, underscoring firms' growing focus on succession planning and embracing diverse leadership.

Seven office managing partners across the globe were promoted at O'Melveny & Myers last month, while Bryan Cave Leighton Paisner promoted two lawyers to MP last week. Also last week, McGuireWoods announced it would rotate its leadership roster, appointing four new office managing partners. Firms including Finnegan, K&L Gates, Bradley, and King & Spalding have also embraced new regional leadership in recent months.

The focus on rotating out office managing partners, whether on a relatively fixed term, such as at McGuireWoods, or simply regularly, allows those partners to return to building out their practices, said Avis Caravello, a legal recruiter and strategist in the Bay Area.

"It is a good sign that firms are really paying attention to operations," Caravello said. "In many instances, when the managing partner role turns over, it is a positive sign signaling the firm's commitment to leadership development and the former managing partner's practice development."

In prior years, it wasn't unusual for a law firm to maintain these roles for a long time.

"It wasn't uncommon to see someone in that role » Page 4

Albany County Court Judge Announces He's Seeking Election to NY Supreme Court

BY BRIAN LEE

ALBANY County Court Judge William T. Little announced on Thursday his candidacy for a seat on a trial court jurisdiction that hears a number of cases that ask for review of decisions by the state government, in the Capital Region, and Hudson Valley.

The Democrat's run for New York State Supreme Court in the Third Judicial District sets up a likely contested race in November.

Republican delegates who nominate judicial candidates are holding their convention on Aug. 8, at which time the political party expects to field a candidate, said its convener, John Faso. The GOP is not ready to announce that candidate's identity, said Faso, a former congressman.

Burford Capital Raises $500M Via Debt Offering To Broaden Litigation Finance Portfolio

BY JON CAMPISI

THIRD-PARTY litigation financier Burford Capital this week announced the successful completion of a $500 million debt offering, with the capital infusion expected to help the company fund more commercial civil cases, as the use of litigation funding continues to grow in the U.S.

Burford says that the net proceeds from the offering will also help repay bonds due in 2025 at their maturity date, and that the remainder of the capital infusion will be used for general corporate purposes, including the potential repayment or retirement of other existing indebtedness.

Burford's chief executive officer, Christopher Bogart, said he is pleased with the debt offering, which was "substantially oversubscribed, reflecting strong demand and market confidence in Burford's performance."

Burford, which in addition to litigation funding also focuses on risk management, asset recovery and various legal finance advisory activities, is considered to be the world's largest litigation funding company.

"As a business like ours grows, and we've been growing substantially, we obviously put lots of capital out the door," Bogart said in an interview Wednesday. "That's our core business, and so we need periodically to go and replenish those coffers."

The $500 million debt offering is the largest Burford has ever done, Bogart said, and demand from bond buyers have increased over time.

The speedy pace of the deal was also impressive, with Burford raising the half-billion dollars in just 24 hours.

The outcome, Bogart said, shows that third-party litigation finance continues to be highly sought after, and that for lawyers this is just a "normal part of the ecosystem."

Litigation funding has become an increasingly popular tool for plaintiffs in various types of commercial litigation, particularly in intellectual property matters. Along with its growing popularity, efforts have been made, both in the courts and various state legislatures, to begin regulating the industry more, as opponents express concern about a lack of transparency into litigation financing agreements.

The funding agreements are often not automatically disclosed to opposing parties, and some organizations tied to corporate defendants, such as the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, have come out in support of greater levels of disclosure.

With the capital infusion from the debt offerings, Burford expects that it can double the size of the funding business within the next five years, Bogart said. And while the company plans to fund more cases than in the past, it won't necessarily expand the types of commercial cases it will handle beyond its current roster.

At the same time, Bogart said, Burford is likely going to be broadening its participation in the legal ecosystem. Litigation funding has always been a core part of its business, "and what we have signaled is a willingness to also participate in some of the other things that go into making litigation happen."

Bogart said Burford is open to making equity investments in law firms along with financing their cases, something they're already doing in the U.K. where rules are less stringent.

Burford says it is also open to expanding financing offerings beyond just litigation: it is considering funding law firm needs such as artificial intelligence programs and other legal technologies that are becoming in more common use in the legal industry.

"We just do that indirectly, through our case funding, and we're prepared to consider doing that directly as well," Bogart said.

Meanwhile, the company is inching towards unlocking a windfall from a long-running investment in a case it helped finance against the Republic of Argentina in the Southern District of New York.

COURTESY PHOTO

Christopher Bogart, chief executive officer and co-founder of Burford Capital, said Burford is open to making equity investments in law firms along with financing their cases, something they're already doing in the U.K. where rules are less stringent.

Argentina last week filed an emergency appeal of a U.S. judge's order that the country turn over 51% of its stake in YPF, Argentina's then-state-run oil and gas company that later went public, to satisfy a $16 billion judgment in the case.

At the time, Bogart called the ruling a "major milestone for Burford," estimating the company is entitled to 35% of those damages.

Burford on Wednesday declined to answer questions related to the YPF case. Argentina's appeal, filed with the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 2nd Circuit, could put the lower court's decision on hold, leaving Burford in a holding pattern and unable to collect any money until the appeals court rules.

Dunn Isaacson Rhee, Paul Weiss Spinoff Boutique, Now Has 26 Lawyers, Plans To Grow

BY PATRICK SMITH
WASHINGTON, D.C.

NEARLY two months after Karen Dunn, William Isaacson and Jeannie Rhee left Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison to form a spinoff firm, the litigation partners on Wednesday made the new firm official, launching its website and announcing its opening in Washington, D.C.

In all, the new firm has 26 lawyers, including at least 13 partners, most of whom come from Paul Weiss. The partners have already represented clients such as Creative Artists Agency, Amazon, Qualcomm, Meta, and Google, among others, in court over the last several weeks, according to the boutique's release.

The release said the partners work on high-stakes trials, investigations and crisis management, operating as a "legal SWAT team" and bringing together "an experienced team of litigators."

"We are building a modern law firm to meet clients' evolving needs in an increasingly complex and fast-moving world," Dunn, Isaacson and Rhee said in a joint statement. "We are grateful to have received so much support since deciding to launch our new firm. It has enabled us to skip the startup phase, immediately attract an experienced team of litigators and get right to work handling consequential trials and investigations all around the country."

Dunn Isaacson Rhee, with 35 employees in total, has partners based in New York and San Francisco and plans to open offices in both cities, the boutique said.

Dunn, Rhee and Isaacson were all part of Paul Weiss' team representing Google in a case against the Justice Department, which accused the company of monopolizing the technology behind online advertising. A federal judge ruled against Google in April.

All the name partners have high-profile careers, including Dunn, who was an associate White House counsel, and Isaacson, a top trial lawyer. For her part, Rhee was a senior deputy in the Mueller special counsel investigation and was previously the deputy assistant attorney general.

Several of the boutique partners have donated to Democratic officials or have advised them, with Dunn helping presidential candidate Kamala Harris last year to prep for a debate against Donald Trump.

None of the partners made themselves available for an interview.

When asked whether the firm has any plans to litigate against the Trump administration, a boutique spokesperson said: "The firm plans to take on a broad range of work and presumes that this will include being adverse to the administration. The firm is already adverse for some clients (eg, Google) and assumes it will do more."

The spokesperson added it's "a litigation-only boutique, and we will take on a wide range of litigation, including commercial and pro bono work."

The boutique spokesperson added that Dunn Isaacson Rhee will continue to grow and has three associates hired who will start in summer and fall (included in the 26-lawyer count). "Beyond that, we continue to be approached by people who are interested — and those people are from other firms, from the government, and elsewhere. The interest has been truly overwhelming," the spokesperson said, adding they are not targeting any particular place for recruitment.

"Client response has been overwhelmingly positive," the spokesperson said, noting they also have work for clients that is not public record.

Other notable work between the founding partners includes representing nine plaintiffs in Sines v Kessler, where, along with co-counsel, they secured a victory over the leaders of several neo-Nazi groups responsible for the violence in Charlottesville, Virginia, in 2017.

While most of the partners, counsel and associates listed on the boutique's website have arrived directly from Paul Weiss, not all have. Meryl Governski (Conant) was a partner at Willkie Farr & Gallagher; Grant Vinik, partner and general counsel, worked previously in the Senate's legal counsel office; and Agbeko Petty, a counsel, was a Justice Department trial lawyer.

COMMENTARY

For New Partners in Plaintiff-Side Firms, A Focus on People and the Big Picture

BY ROSS TODD

LET'S TURN our attention once again to the litigators who have participated over the past year or so in the "How I Made It" series that our colleagues at Law.com curate. So far this year, we've drawn on insights from newly minted partners in the Second Hundred firms in the Am Law 200 and a group of women who made partner in IP litigation practices.

This morning, we're going to focus on the responses of five litigators who practice on the plaintiffs' side of complex litigation: Guillaume Buell and John Vielandi, who both practice at Labaton Keller Sucharow, Justin Hawal of DiCello Levitt, Juan Carlos Sanchez of Robbins Geller Rudman & Dowd and Steven Daroci of Seeger Weiss. While the career paths that led them to plaintiff-side work differ, they all emphasized the need to understand how individual litigation tasks fit into the broader themes and strategies of a matter. They also stressed that the nature of their work requires team members to be flexible in dealing with different types of personalities among clients and colleagues.

Vielandi, who handles corporate governance and shareholder rights litigation at Labaton in New York, has focused on that work throughout his career. He previously practiced at Bernstein Litowitz Berger & Grossmann for five years before joining Labaton in February 2019. He said he made an effort from early on to build strong relationships across the firm, not just with the people he worked with daily.

"I've always tried to be a team player—whether that means lending a helping hand, offering advice or supporting others in their work," Vielandi said. "I think that combination of reliability, collaboration and a commitment to excellence played a key role in my path to partnership."

Vielandi's Labaton colleague in New York, Guillaume Buell, has been at the firm for the better part of a decade. He was previously an associate at Cahill Gordon & Reindel in New York and Hicks Davis Wynn in Houston—having had two "tours of duty" at both Cahill and Labaton. He said, as he looks back at the twists of his career path, he wouldn't change a thing because it led him to "the job of my dreams, with coworkers and clients that make my career second to none."

Buell, who focuses on business development in his current role, said that he and his partners at Labaton don't operate in "silos" and there is a lot of collaboration when it comes to evaluating cases, litigating them and growing the firm's client base. He said that has given him a mindset to be driven to accomplish as much as he can.

"This can be a blessing and a curse because you've got to learn sometimes how to take a moment and catch your breath," Buell said. "But because Labaton puts meaning behind the idea of working as partners, we do everything collaboratively and feed off of each other's skills and abilities."

Steven Daroci, who handles a mix of products liability, class actions, mass torts, commercial litigation and consumer litigation at Seeger Weiss in Ridgefield Park, New Jersey, is the son of a personal injury attorney. He said he always had an interest in working on behalf of plaintiffs. He joined Seeger Weiss in July 2022 as counsel after making partner at Fox Rothschild, where he began as a first-year associate in 2013. He said that as a younger attorney, it was a challenge learning to work with different partners with different working styles and drastically different personalities.

"While stressful in real time, these circumstances can still be a learning opportunity by forcing you to be adaptive, by expanding your comfort zone, and by demonstrating the benefits and drawbacks of these different approaches," he said.

COURTESY PHOTOS

Juan Carlos Sanchez, who handles securities fraud cases at Robbins Geller in San Diego, has been with the firm full-time for 10 years. He summered at the firm in 2013, clerked for U.S. District Judge Nelva Gonzales Ramos of the Southern District of Texas and then joined the firm in fall 2015. Sanchez's parents often worked two jobs apiece to make ends meet and now live in retirement off a pension from his father's job as a custodian. He said, because of that, he always knew he wanted to be a plaintiff-side attorney and handle class actions "to produce the greatest benefit and impact to the greatest number of people."

Sanchez said that his empathy has been a personality trait that has set him apart and helped him professionally. "When you empathize with a client's plight, you really know what's at stake—and it inspires you to do the best job imaginable," he said. "I think some of the most important qualities in an attorney—always being prepared, pushing the envelope, recognizing opportunities, for example—stem from having empathy toward your client and being relentless with your advocacy on their behalf."

Sanchez said this approach has led him to treat every client like a member of his family and to build teams that work toward building consensus. "You want to empower everyone on the team to speak their minds because a concern now could grow into a more serious problem later," he said. "Foster an environment that's flat, so a hierarchy doesn't stop people from sharing with each other."

Justin Hawal, meanwhile, handles a mix of class action litigation and civil rights, personal injury, products liability, privacy and whistleblower work at DiCello Levitt in Cleveland, Ohio. He has been with the firm since its inception in 2017, having started with its predecessor, the DiCello Law Firm, in August 2014.

Hawal said he was asked to shift his focus to complex cases about halfway into his career. He said he felt overwhelmed at first, thinking he was behind other attorneys at his general level of experience who had focused on those cases earlier in their careers. But over time, he said he became proficient.

"This experience has given me the confidence that, no matter what legal problems I encounter, I can find solutions," he said. "I try to focus on the things that I can control, including the process of delivering consistent and high-quality work product. From there, hopefully favorable results will follow."

DOMESTIC ENVIRONMENTAL LAW

Court Recognizes NY's Interest In Challenging Anti-Wind Order

By Karen Meara And Christopher Rizzo

On July 3, 2025, U.S. District Court Judge William G. Young of the District of Massachusetts rejected a motion to dismiss a lawsuit brought by New York and other states (plaintiffs) challenging the legality of an indefinite federal pause on all approvals for onshore and offshore wind development. Massachusetts v. Trump, WL 1836592 (D.Mass., July 3, 2025) (decision).

The indefinite pause (Wind Order) was a directive included in a presidential memorandum issued by President Donald Trump on his first day in office.

The plaintiffs challenged the wind order on a variety of grounds, including that it violated the administrative Procedures Act (APA) by requiring federal officials to ignore statutory and regulatory mandates regarding the timing of decisions on permit and other applications needed to advance wind energy projects.

Although Young initially appeared skeptical of plaintiffs' standing to file the lawsuit, he ultimately allowed the plaintiffs' APA claims to proceed.

This was no surprise; federal courts have allowed a wide variety of state-led challenges to executive orders regarding energy, regardless of which party holds the White House.

The surprise was that the court raised standing to begin with. This article discusses the Massachusetts v. Trump decision and New York's essential interest in advancing renewable energy.

The Wind Order

On Jan. 20, 2025, Trump issued a presidential memorandum titled "Temporary Withdrawal of All Areas on the Outer Continental Shelf from Offshore Wind Leasing and Review of the Federal Government's Leasing and Permitting Practices for Wind Projects."

Section 2(a) of the memo—the Wind Order—directs all federal agencies to indefinitely refrain from issuing any wind-related approvals.

It prohibits "new or renewed approvals, rights of way, permits, leases, or loans" for offshore and onshore wind energy projects until the Department of the Interior, the Department of Energy and other agencies complete a "comprehensive review" of "Federal wind leasing and permitting practices."

> The wind order effectively halts wind projects lacking all necessary federal approvals. Very few projects escape its impact.

The Wind Order effectively halts wind projects lacking all necessary federal approvals. Very few projects escape its impact.

The order specifies no deadline for completing such review, and, when pressed by the court on that point, the administration "declined to give one."

In the meantime, federal officials with discretionary roles in wind energy project approvals have in fact paused all approvals in accordance with the Wind Orders' directive, as evidenced by agency website posts announcing pauses in permitting, and by data showing an abrupt decline in permit approval rates. (citing the states' First Amended Complaint (FAC) at ¶¶ 142-156).

New York's Interests in Wind Development

The Wind Order is directly at odds with New York's multi-pronged and legally binding efforts to reduce greenhouse gas and other harmful emissions and promote renewable energy.

The leading example of these efforts is implementation of the state's Climate Leadership and Community Protection Act, which requires state electric utilities to secure 70% of their electric supply from renewable sources by 2030 and 100% from zero emissions sources by 2040, and requires the development of 9,000 megawatts of offshore wind capacity by 2035.

New York has made substantial investments in encouraging the development of utility scale onshore and offshore wind, and related supply chains. A freeze on federal approvals directly undermines that effort, as well as the thousands of jobs and hundreds of millions of dollars in private sector investments it has spurred.

For example, as alleged in the FAC, New York has more than 20 land-based wind projects in various stages of development that are "expected to provide hundreds of millions of dollars in incremental economic benefits to New York state," including taxes that would be paid directly to municipalities. See FAC at ¶ 181.

New York is also a long-standing member of the Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiative (RGGI), a group of ten states that have entered into a voluntary cap and trade agreement that limits emissions from power plants. RGGI just announced a significant reduction in the cap going forward, which creates further pressure to develop wind and other renewable energy.

ASK THE FORMER REGULATOR

How Will the OBBA Change Tax Provisions for Condo Unit Owners?

By Erica F. Buckley

Question: I understand the One Big Beautiful Bill Act (OBBB Act) changed some of the tax provisions for condominium unit owners. Can you provide an overview of the changes and how they differ from past versions of the law? Finally, should offering plans be updated to include this new information.

Answer: Updated tax disclosure language reflecting the passage of the One Big Beautiful Bill

The One Big Beautiful Bill Act (OBBB Act) has been enacted and makes significant, and in some cases enhanced, changes to the federal tax treatment of home ownership, including for unit owners in condominiums.

The OBBB Act extends, modifies, and in some cases replaces provisions of the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act of 2017 (TCJA), which was previously set to expire on Dec. 31, 2025. As a result, the tax landscape for purchasers and unit owners has changed, and the provisions of the TCJA will not simply revert to pre-2018 law.

The following summary reflects the key provisions of the OBBB Act as they relate to home ownership and condominium unit owners.

1. Standard deduction and personal exemptions

• The OBBB Act permanently extends and enhances the increased standard deduction. For tax years beginning after December 31, 2024, the standard deduction increased to $15,750 for single filers, $23,625 for individuals who file as heads of household, and $31,500 for married individuals filing jointly, adjusted annually for inflation (OBBB Act, Sec. 70102).

• Personal exemptions remain eliminated. This section permanently repeals the personal exemption tax deduction for most taxpayers and establishes a temporary (for 2025–2028) personal exemption tax deduction of up to $6,000 for individuals who are 65 years or older (subject to income limitations and identification requirements) (OBBB Act, Sec. 70103).

> The One Big Beautiful Bill Act (OBBB Act) has been enacted and makes significant, and in some cases enhanced, changes to the federal tax treatment of home ownership, including for unit owners in condominiums.

2. Mortgage interest deduction

• The OBBB Act permanently extends the TCJA limitations on the mortgage interest deduction. This section makes the limit on the itemized tax deduction for home mortgage interest permanent. Under this section, taxpayers who itemize their tax deductions may deduct interest paid on the first $750,000 (or $375,000 for married individuals filing separately) of mortgage debt. (Taxpayers who itemize their tax deductions may deduct interest paid on the first $1 million (or $500,000 for married individuals filing separately) of mortgage debt originated before December 15, 2017.) (OBBB Act, Sec. 70108).

• Certain mortgage insurance premiums tied to acquisition are treated as deductible interest under the OBBB Act.

• These limits are not indexed for inflation.

3. Home equity loan interest

• The OBBB Act continues the disallowance of the deduction for interest on most home equity loans and home equity lines of credit, unless the proceeds are used to acquire, construct, or substantially improve the taxpayer's home that secures the loan (OBBB Act, Sec. 70108).

4. State and Local Tax (SALT) deduction

• The OBBB Act increases and modifies the limitation on the deduction for state and local taxes. For tax years beginning in 2025, the SALT deduction cap is raised to $40,000 ($20,000 for married individuals filing separately), with annual inflation adjustments through 2029.

• The cap phases down for taxpayers with modified adjusted gross income above $500,000 ($250,000 for married filing separately) but cannot be reduced below $10,000. For tax years beginning after 2029, the cap reverts to $10,000 ($5,000 for married individuals filing separately) (OBBB Act, Sec. 70120).

5. Additional notes for condominium unit owners

• Unit owners who use their units as personal residences and itemize deductions may continue to deduct mortgage interest and real estate taxes, subject to the limitations above and the overall cap on state and local tax deductions.

• The deductibility of points and prepaid interest » Page 7 is the tool of a tyrant, wielded to suppress independent thought. Instead of fear, let this moment fuel the fire that already burns at the heart of this place. A fire of righteous indignation at abuses of power. Of commitment to seek justice for victims. Of dedication to truth above all else."

The firing of the veteran federal prosecutor comes as the Department of Justice and President Donald Trump face backlash over their handling of records relating to the Epstein prosecution.

Epstein died by suicide while awaiting trial in Manhattan in 2019. Maxwell was subsequently found guilty of sex trafficking and sentenced to 20 years in prison. She is appealing the conviction.

Comey previously argued against the disclosure of Epstein-related records in response to a media lawsuit, stating the release could harm Maxwell's pending appeal.

Her termination on Wednesday also follows reports that her father is under investigation by the DOJ, allegedly over his handling of a 2016 investigation into Trump as well as a social media post depicting seashells on beach spelling out "86 47," which has been interpreted by some as a threat to Trump.

Comey most recently worked on the prosecution of Combs. Jurors in that case returned a mixed verdict earlier this month, acquitting the music mogul of racketeering and sex trafficking charges and finding him guilty of counts relating to transporting commercial sex workers.

Her firing follows resignations earlier this year by acting SDNY U.S. Attorney Danielle Sassoon and other prosecutors who felt a Justice Department directive to dismiss the public corruption case against New York City Mayor Eric Adams was without merit.

Comey worked as an associate at Debevoise & Plimpton prior to clerking for former U.S. District Chief Judge Loretta Preska of the Southern District of New York. She joined the U.S. Attorney's Office in 2015.

Leadership

for decades," Caravello said. "My impression is that firms want to balance it out. They don't want to create someone who is one-dimensional and only a manager for their entire career. They want their partners to grow and develop beyond a singular role.

"If a partner is in that role for too long, their practice development could suffer, because the attention that's required to manage an office today is much more complex, challenging, and time-intensive than it has been historically," she added.

Shifting managing partner duties can also be a way for a firm to engage in succession planning. Promoting a younger partner to train them up in an office managing role with lower stakes helps prepare them for taking on larger responsibilities at a firmwide level, and allows older managing partners seeking retirement to wind down their careers.

"A benefit of the managing partner role is that you can try people out in a leadership role without super high stakes," said one legal strategist, who could only speak under the condition of anonymity.

It's also worth considering that office managing partner roles are not often as glamorous as they sound on paper for those involved. These roles typically don't come with additional compensation, though they do require extra responsibility.

Am Law 200 firms often maintain somewhat fixed terms for management partners, usually between two and five years, although it varies, the strategist said, as most firms balk at the idea of having a partner in a leadership role for more than two consecutive terms.

Rotating in new leadership can be a chance for a firm to promote more diverse leadership. Of 16 office managing partners appointed at firms in the last two months, nearly half—seven—were women.

"I think it's great, because firms generally pick the best person for the job, and they pick people that they want to develop into stewards of the firm," Caravello said. "It's really refreshing to see that kind of validation."

through with some sense of false urgency."

Booker and other Democrats, throughout the hearing, asked that the committee hear testimony from former DOJ attorney and whistleblower Erez Reuveni, who claims Bove raised the idea of ignoring court orders in immigration cases at a March 14 meeting.

But Grassley, ahead of the vote, said he was not concerned by Reuveni's accusations. He framed emails and texts that Reuveni shared last week to support his claims as only showing that Bove had aggressively litigated the DOJ's positions in immigration cases.

"Even if we accept most of the claims as true, there's no scandal here," Grassley said. "Government lawyers aggressively litigating and interpreting court orders isn't misconduct; it's what lawyers do all the time."

Grassley said his staff interviewed people at the March 14 meeting, where Reuveni alleges Bove said the DOJ "would need to consider telling the courts 'fuck you'" and ignore any potential court order that would enjoin removals under the Alien Enemies Act before they could be carried out.

"We have four separate people, other than Mr. Bove, who were present in the meeting telling us the following: There was never any directive to ignore a court order, and each of them left the meeting with the understanding that the Justice Department would aggressively litigate but would follow court orders," Grassley said.

Sen. Richard Durbin, the committee's top Democrat, urged against advancing Bove in light of the controversies surrounding his short time at the DOJ. Durbin called out Republicans for not holding a hearing allowing Reuveni to testify.

"If you question the veracity of Mr. Reuveni, he's ready to stand before you, raise his right hand, take an oath and testify under oath," said Durbin, of Illinois. "What more can you ask about credibility than that?"

At the close of the hearing, Grassley said Democrats had previously cut off debate on a couple of Biden's nominees when they controlled the committee.

Bove has served as principal associate deputy attorney general since the start of Trump's second term. Before that, he was the president's criminal defense lawyer who defended him against hush-money charges.

The committee also advanced the district court nominations of Edward L. Artau for the Southern District of Florida, Kyle Christopher Dudek for the Middle District of Florida, Anne-Leigh Gaylord Moe for the Middle District of Florida and Jordan Emery Pratt for the Middle District of Florida.

and enhance the collecting experience by relentlessly focusing on collectors."

Fanatics is a top competitor to Panini America Inc., a rival that has separately filed a pending lawsuit accusing Fanatics of unlawful monopolization in the U.S. market for professional sports player trading cards.

Boies Schiller Flexner on behalf of Panini filed a complaint in August 2023 alleging Fanatics intends to monopolize the market for MLB, NBA and NFL player trading cards in violation of the Sherman Act. Latham & Watkins and Quinn Emanuel Urquhart & Sullivan represent Fanatics in that litigation, which remains pending in the Southern District of New York.

Panini has exclusive licenses to produce NBA and NFL player trading cards set to expire this September and in March 2026 respectively, according to a ruling Chief U.S. District Judge Laura Taylor Swain of the Southern District of New York filed March 10 dismissing some—but not all—of Panini's claims against Fanatics.

The complaint DiCello Levitt filed Monday is substantially similar to a class-action lawsuit the Radice Law Firm filed in March in the Southern District of New York alleging Fanatics reduced output and competition to artificially inflate the prices of fully licensed MLB, NBA and NFL player trading cards.

Little became the first Black Albany County Court judge in 2022, his term ending in 2031.

Little also serves as an acting Supreme Court justice, presiding over complex trials, Article 78 proceedings, grand-jury presentations, and Temporary Extreme Risk Protection Order hearings, he said in a news statement.

Little, who resides in Albany with his wife and two children, is a lifelong New Yorker, born and raised in Monticello in Sullivan County, and he has dedicated nearly two decades to public service, the practice of law, and the fair administration of justice, he continued.

"I am running for Supreme Court to ensure that every person who enters our courtrooms is treated with fairness, dignity, and respect," Little said. "Throughout my career, I have worked to uphold the rule of law while staying deeply rooted in the values of community and public service."

Little previously served as counsel to the secretary of the New York State Senate, where he advised on high-stakes investigations, managed litigation, and helped implement critical legislative reforms. His background also includes extensive experience as a trial attorney and litigator in both private practice and public service.

Beyond the courtroom, Little has been an active leader in the legal community. He is the former president of the Albany County Bar Association and currently serves as co-chair of the association's Racial Justice Committee.

The Committee to Elect Judge William Little for New York Supreme Court began accepting contributions in June, having amassed about $655 as of Monday's filing to state campaign finance regulators.

The judicial district spans Albany, Columbia, Greene, Rensselaer, Schoharie, Sullivan and Ulster counties. State Supreme Court judges serve for 14 years, earning $232,600 annually.

Developments and Potential Changes For FARA on the Horizon

By Sidhardha Kamaraju And Aaron Wiltse

A recurring theme in public affairs over the past several years has been the extent to which foreign actors have sought to influence in the United States, including over its government and government officials. While every administration has decried foreign nations seeking to insert themselves into U.S. public policy, enforcement against such activity has often been uneven.

In particular, the Foreign Agents Registration Act (FARA) has gone from a little-known statute to a major enforcement tool in recent years. In the last several months, the United States Department of Justice (DOJ) had signaled a retreat from robust use of FARA as a tool of criminal enforcement.

But recent criminal prosecutions and potential legislative developments have also demonstrated that companies and individuals working internationally still need to be mindful of the applicable legal requirements when operating on behalf of foreign actors. A failure to do so could lead to significant civil and criminal penalties.

Background on FARA

Enacted in 1938 to combat rising Nazi propaganda, FARA, 22 U.S.C. §611 et seq., is designed to promote transparency around the activities of individuals ("foreign agents") engaging in certain activities in the United States on behalf of foreign persons, entities, governments or political parties ("foreign principals"). Foreign agents are required under FARA to register with DOJ, file public disclosures regarding their activities, and retain copies of informational materials they distribute within the United States. FARA aims to enable both the U.S. public and government to factor in the agents' relationship with their foreign principal when making decisions in response to the agents' activities.

An individual qualifies as a "foreign agent" if he engages in certain activities in the United States "as an agent, representative, employee, or servant…at the order, request, or under the direction or control, of a foreign principal." 22 U.S.C. §611(c)(1).

The most significant "foreign principals" are foreign governments and political parties, but the category also includes any non-U.S. individual, partnership, association, corporation, or organization. Id. §611(b).

> The Foreign Agents Registration Act (FARA) has gone from a little-known statute to a major enforcement tool in recent years.

While many may think of lobbying as the principal activity targeted by FARA, in reality, the statute covers a wide swath of conduct, including, for example, acting as "a public relations counsel [or] publicity agent" for a "foreign principal," or "solicit[ing], collect[ing], disburs[ing], or dispens[ing] contributions, loans, money, or other things of value for or in the interest of such foreign principal." Id. §611(c)(1)(i)-(iv).

FARA Enforcement and the Bondi Memo

FARA was historically an obscure statute, and enforcement has not been robust until relatively recently. According to a 2016 report, between 1966 and 2015, DOJ brought only seven criminal FARA cases—typically for serious cases like espionage or national security threats—and did not pursue any injunctive remedies for FARA violations between 1991 and 2016. (See U.S. Dep't of Justice Office of Inspector General, Audit of the National Security Division's Enforcement and Administration of the Foreign Agents Registration Act at 8, 12 (2016)). Instead, much of the enforcement efforts during that period consisted of "encouraging voluntary compliance, rather than pursuing criminal or civil charges." (Id. at 9.)

That approach to FARA changed with Special Counsel Robert Mueller's investigation of President Trump in 2017 and was noted explicitly in 2019 when John C. Demers, the head of the Justice Department's National Security Division, announced a shift "from treating FARA as an administrative obligation and regulatory obligation to one that is increasingly an enforcement priority." See Katie Brenner, Justice Dept. to Step Up Enforcement of Foreign Influence Laws, N.Y. Times (Mar. 6, 2019). Since 2018, DOJ has indicted almost twice as many people for FARA-related crimes as in the previous five decades combined.

In the new Administration, FARA enforcement appears likely to be curbed, at least to a degree, once again. On Feb. 5, 2025, Attorney General Pam Bondi issued a series of memoranda reshaping the Justice Department's enforcement priorities. In a brief passage of one such memo, "General Policy Regarding Charging, Plea Negotiations, and Sentencing," A.G. Bondi directed DOJ to approach FARA prosecutions in a way that is much closer to its historical practices.

Bondi disbanded the Foreign Influence Task Force, which was established in 2017 to identify and counteract foreign influence operations targeting the United States. She further instructed that "[r]ecourse to criminal charges under the Foreign Agents Registration Act (FARA) and 18 U.S.C. §951 shall be limited to instances of alleged conduct similar to more

While he is proud of many dispositions he cannot discuss, Zuckerman said one of his most memorable moments as an attorney was being part of litigation that freed a 60-year-old man serving a life sentence in Pennsylvania for a murder committed as a 15-year old.

Zuckerman's pro bono client spent 42 years in prison and was released after the U.S. Supreme determined that automatic life sentences without parole for a juvenile is unconstitutional.

Kroll Accused by Smart TV Business of Fumbling Valuation to Woo LG Entertainment

Kroll Inc. appears to have waded into a long-running battle between the founders of smart TV data company, LG Ads, and the company's owner, LG Electronics, with one co-founder accusing Kroll of intentionally devaluing LG Ads stock to win LG Electronics' patronage.

Lampros Kalampoukas sued Kroll for breach of contract, breach of the implied covenant, professional negligence and malpractice on Wednesday, saying that "eager to ingratiate itself" to LG Electronics, Kroll depressed LG Ads' stock value.

"Kroll's breach led to nearly $100 million in corporate value being wiped away, dramatically decreasing the value of Plaintiff's shares," according to a complaint filed by Quinn Emanuel Urquhart & Sullivan on behalf of Kalampoukas.

The lawsuit was filed in the Manhattan Supreme Court and is captioned Kalampoukas v. Kroll. The case's index number is 159024/2025.

Kalampoukas is one of the founders of what was initially known as Alphonso, but was later rebranded as LG Ads.

Executives at Mountain View, California-based LG Ads and LG Electronics had retained Kroll in the lead-up to a tender offer, which was one of three offerings that LG Electronics agreed to when it purchased a controlling stake in LG Ads through a subsidiary in 2020. According to Kalampoukas' complaint, the tender offers were meant to give LG Ads' founders an opportunity to cash out their stock for fair market value.

But Kalampoukas argued that Kroll intentionally used a flawed valuation methodology to reach a stock price closer to the valuation provided by a firm retained by an LG Entertainment-affiliated group.

"Kroll incorrectly, and on information and belief, purposefully incorrectly, made the implicit assumption that Alphonso had a working capital deficit of nearly $100 million as of March 31, 2025, when Kroll itself recognized just nine months prior that Alphonso had no working capital deficit at all," Kalampoukas said.

The suit follows earlier litigation pursued by Kalampoukas in the Delaware Court of Chancery.

Kalampoukas had been part of a group of LG Ads founders who remained in the company after LG Electronics gained a majority stake. But in late 2022, LG Ads fired that group from its board of directors, prompting a lawsuit in the Delaware Court of Chancery. Backed by Davis Polk Wardwell, Kalampoukas and the others won their case and were reinstated to the board.

As that litigation was closing out, LG Electronics and LG Ads were prepping for the second tender offer required under the 2020 deal. Under that deal, executives affiliated with LG Electronics and LG Ads would each retain a valuation firm to value LG Ads' stock. If their valuations are more than 10% apart, they would seek out a third valuation. The average of the two closest valuations would then be used to determine the LG Ads stock price. Kroll had been retained to carry out that third valuation, according to the complaint.

Representatives for LG Ads and LG Electronics didn't respond to Wednesday's requests for comment.

Trump, China, and Sanctions Keep Germany's Lawyers on High Alert

BY JAMES JACKSON
BERLIN

PRESIDENT Donald Trump's threat of imposing 30% tariffs on European goods has prompted Chancellor Friedrich Merz to warn that German exporters could be shaken "to the core," facing potential losses of €1 billion per month.

There is one potential beneficiary, however: international law firms with a presence in Germany, Europe's largest economy.

Ewald Plum, customs and trade partner at Rödl & Partner, has dealt with many trade issues over his career but never a situation quite like this. "I've been dealing with international customs and foreign trade issues for 44 years now and there are always ups and downs in this area of consultancy," he said. "But just when you think we're getting some breathing room, with Trump you're never sure what's coming."

Plum warns that treating the EU as a single economic bloc could lead to severe, sector-specific economic damage if broad tariffs are imposed.

Germany's Bundesbank warned last week that "new US tariffs and uncertainty over future U.S. policy are dampening economic growth," with President Joachim Nagel noting the measures are coming just as German industry is beginning to stabilise after a prolonged downturn.

To protect profitability, companies are looking to change how they operate in order to avoid vulnerability.

"Trade with the USA at the moment has almost collapsed in steel and aluminium or the car industry, which face over 50 percent tariffs, so clients are trying to build businesses in the USA," Plum said, noting that the "automotive sector is currently under severe pressure, especially in Germany, and the supply industry in particular is looking for alternative sales markets and new business areas such as supplies to the defence industry."

Rödl, a homegrown firm and one of the few German partnerships listed in the ALM Global 200, advises German businesses on structuring contracts to reduce risk and tax exposure in U.S. deals—whether goods are exported directly from Germany or from the growing number of German-owned manufacturing sites in China, which Plum identifies as the primary target of Trump's trade war.

YOPHO/ADOBE STOCK

With Trump's tariff threats, EU sanctions, and rising China tensions, German trade lawyers are facing unprecedented demand as businesses scramble to adapt. Above, one of Berlin's main commercial areas.

"We advise on what the contracts mean or how you can get out of them," Plum said.

M&A Implications

Bernd Meyring, Linklaters' global head of anti-trust, thinks German M&A could see a flurry of activity as companies take strategic decisions to minimise exposure to the financial risk of increased costs.

"What type of acquisitions do we need to make in order to suffer less from tariffs? Are there businesses that we need to shrink because they are mainly doing something that will become prohibitively expensive because of tariffs?" Meyring asked.

Meyring is confident that the tariffs will be good news for law firms in the medium term, however.

"Any change creates [a] need to recalibrate, restructure, and in a way that often raises complicated legal issues," he said. "We know that companies are very actively thinking about opportunities and what they can do to set themselves up for the new normal, which seems to be more disruptions to cross-border trade."

There will "probably be more volatility, which makes planning a bit more difficult, but I don't think it would overall, in a general way, backfire on legal services because normally there is more need for legal services at times of change."

A World Without Free Trade

Wessel Heukamp, Freshfields' global co-head of M&A, said the impact of Trump's tariffs won't just be felt in M&A. All transaction-related practices including finance and regulatory work could be affected, he said, adding that Freshfields will "see a lot of advice regarding the new tariffs and their impact on current contracts."

Meyring, meanwhile, believes his anti-trust advisory practice could also see a bump in business as regulators adjust rulings to the reality of less competition in a post-free trade world.

Regulators typically view markets globally, considering both domestic and foreign companies as sources of competition, he said. However, if tariffs disrupt cross-border trade, foreign competitors may be less able to compete, causing regulators to see their domestic markets as more concentrated and less competitive.

Trump Tariffs Are Just The Start

Rödl advises many German family-owned businesses that are part of wider supply chains, often as part of the car industry.

Plum said Europeans shouldn't look at the Trump tariffs in isolation, but as part of an ever-more complex world of trade which includes sanctions on Russia and Belarus and, increasingly, China.

"Since the EU-Russia sanctions, the demand for advice from companies has been very high," he said.

"The—in-my-opinion—unjustified imposition of additional U.S. tariffs represents a global, big problem for global trade," Plum said, noting "the EU has increased tariffs on Chinese electric cars to up to 35%. This makes it clear that, in addition to the U.S. trade war against the rest of the world, a trade war between the EU and China is also looming."

The geopolitical uncertainty means one thing for lawyers, Plum added, "We assume that the need for advice will increase in the coming years."

Several Indian companies have launched IPOs this month. Above, the financial center in Mumbai, India.

Hogan Lovells, Sidley, CAM and SAM Engaged on Host of New Indian IPOs

BY KASVI SEHGAL
NEW DELHI

A HOST of Indian companies have launched initial public offerings on the local bourse this month. International and domestic firms such as Hogan Lovells, Sidley Austin, AZB & Partners, Cyril Amarchand Mangaldas and Trilegal have been engaged as legal advisers.

Trilegal and Talwar Thakore & Associates (TT&A) have been engaged, together with Hogan Lovells, in Bengaluru-based solar panel manufacturer Emmvee Photovoltaic Power's $353 million debut.

The company, which supplies solar energy-related equipment across India and the U.S., has turned to Trilegal for counsel, with partner Vijay Parthasarathi leading the firm's deal team. The firm is also advising the selling shareholders, Manjunatha Donthi Venkatarathnaiah and Shubha Manjunatha Donthi, on the listing.

Hogan Lovells is acting as U.S. counsel, while TT&A is providing local law advice, to a syndicate of bookrunning managers including JM Financial, IIFL Capital Services, Jefferies India and Kotak Mahindra Capital.

Leading the Hogan Lovells' team is the head of Hogan Lovells' India practice and managing partner of its Dubai office, Biswajit Chatterjee. TT&A partner Abhinav Kumar is steering his firm's deal team.

In a separate deal, Hogan Lovells has also advised, alongside CAM,on the $353 million listing of Mumbai-headquartered engineering conglomerate CG Power and Industrial Solutions.

The firm has been instructed by the issuer with partners Devaki Mankad and Gayathri Ramachandran leading on the advice.

The underwriters, including DAM Capital Advisors, IIFL Capital Services and HSBC Securities' India unit, are being advised by Hogan Lovell's Chatterjee.

AZB & Partners is also reportedly acting for the managers. The firm did not respond to a request for comment.

Meanwhile, Khaitan & Co and Sidley Austin are advising Indian real estate developer Kalpataru Limited on its $185 million public float.

The issuer has engaged Khaitan for counsel with a team including partners Subhayu Sen, Aayush Mohata and Aparna Bagree.

Sidley Austin is acting for a group of underwriters including ICICI Securities, JM Financial and Nomura Holdings. The co-head of the firm's India practice, Manoj Bhargava, is leading the deal team.

Last month, Sidley also acted alongside White & Case, Shardul Amarchand Mangaldas and CAM on the $409 million IPO of The Leela Hotels, an Indian luxury hotel chain currently owned by Canada's Brookfield Asset Management.

Sidley and Shardul Amarchand were instructed by the issuer while White & Case and CAM advised the underwriters. The mandate was one of the largest IPO in the Indian hospitality sector to date and also one of the largest in India this year.

Kirkland and Freshfields Lead Ranking of Advisers To US Private Equity Firms in Europe

BY HABIBA CULLEN-JAFAR
LONDON

KIRKLAND & Ellis and Freshfields have topped a ranking of the most active advisers to U.S. private equity clients in Europe over the last two years, providing fresh evidence of their superiority in the sector.

Kirkland topped the bespoke league table produced for Law.com International by London Stock Exchange Group showing the legal advisers advising on the highest value of transactions involving U.S. financial sponsors acquiring EU-based targets.

The firm completed 112 deals involving U.S. financial buyside sponsors, including PE behemoths such as KKR and Warburg Pincus, up to a total combined value of over $66.6 billion — the highest volume and value among its peers.

This tally means that Kirkland alone covered a 42% share of the market total, which was $158.7 billion.

Dentons Revenue Up 9% to £306M Across UK, Ireland and Middle East

BY MOLLY G. SMITH
LONDON

DENTONS U.K., Ireland and Middle East (UKIME) region has surpassed the £300 million revenue milestone for the first time, reaching £306 million for the financial year ending April 2025—a 9% increase on the previous year's £280.5 million.

CEO of Dentons UKIME, Paul Jarvis described the results as a "major milestone" commenting: "We have achieved this through organic growth and as a result of the strategic choices we made four years ago to develop deeper client relationships and invest in high growth markets."

Dentons' global platform also played a significant role in the region's performance. Inbound work from outside the UKIME region accounted for 12% of revenues, with outbound work making up 13%.

The firm is up 9% on last year's £280.5 million. Above, Paul Jarvis, CEO of Dentons UKIME, and Kate Barton, Global CEO.

The firm has also continued to invest in talent across the UKIME region, hiring 19 laterals and promoting 22 internal partners over the last two years.

Growth in the Middle East was notable, with a 9% revenue increase this year and a 23% rise over the past four years, driven in large part by Dentons' expanding presence in Saudi Arabia.

Meanwhile, the Dublin office has doubled in size over the same period. According to the firm disputes had "a stand-out year" following significant partner growth and involvement in high-profile cases.

In Septmeber 2024, the Dublin office hired two partners, Garrett Hayes and Louise Hodnett from the London offices of McDermott Will & Emery and Baker McKenzie, respectively.

Noteable hires in London include tax partner Neil McKnight from Morgan Lewis, real estate partner Tom Taylor from Norton Rose Fulbright and capital markets partner Colin Chang from Linklaters.

Global CEO, Kate Barton said: "Our UKIME region is an engine of growth for the global firm and I'm delighted at how we continue to bring solutions to our clients here and around the world."

Simmons & Simmons Plans Abu Dhabi Return, Eyes Strategic China Alliance

BY DARIO SABAGHI
ABU DHABI

SIMMONS & Simmons is planning a return to Abu Dhabi in early 2026 to focus on asset management, investment funds, and TMT—including AI—following in-principle licensing approval from the Abu Dhabi Global Market (ADGM) financial centre and economic zone.

Final approval of the licence is pending and Abu Dhabi operations are expected to start in early 2026, a decade after Simmons shuttered its previous office in the emirate in 2016. Simmons is positioning the re-launch as a new direction rather than a re-run.

"We're not reopening in Abu Dhabi. We are opening for the first time in ADGM," Emily Monastiriotis, Simmons & Simmons global managing partner, said, adding that Simmons has grown in previous years as has Abu Dhabi's ADGM, asset funds, and tech sector.

"We advise over 85% of the largest 50 global asset managers, most European and U.S. hedge funds, and major institutional investors," Monastiriotis said. "That's what ADGM is about, and that's what we want to do."

In 2024, the number of companies in ADGM rose 32% to about 2,380. It is now home to 134 asset and fund managers running 166 funds. At the same time, Abu Dhabi is pushing to diversify its economy, with its sovereign wealth funds managing about $1.7 trillion, to boost non-oil growth.

Simmons & Simmons aims to capitalise on the opportunities.

Trump to rescind an executive order against the firm, pledging to offer $40 million in pro bono services to causes that both the firm and Trump support. Other litigation partners have left Paul Weiss since the March 20 deal. While the boutique's founders have connections to Democratic party officials, it's not clear if and how the Trump deal affected their decision to move.

Soon after Dunn, Isaacson, Rhee and partner Jessica Phillips confirmed their exit on May 23, other partners, counsel and associates began leaving Paul Weiss, turning into a slow bleed of litigation talent heading to the boutique.

Karp told partners last month that the departing group reached out to several additional partners and lawyers at Paul Weiss, nearly all of whom have declined to leave, but he expected some other partners who worked together with the trio at Paul Weiss and previously Boies Schiller Flexner to join the group.

Law.com reported previously that several attorneys at Paul Weiss who were either directly connected to the trio or worked with them were "encouraged" to leave the firm.

Karp, seeking to reassure partners, also told them in June that six of the 10 largest matters in the firm over the past month were litigation matters that were generated by current partners and that Paul Weiss has "never been healthier."

In a statement Wednesday, Paul Weiss chair Brad Karp said, "I wish the firm every success."

sider how their work fits into the bigger picture—both in terms of individual cases and the broader practice of their firms.

"It's easy to get caught up in the specific task at hand and assume that what you're working on is the most important thing at that moment," said Labaton's Vielandi. "But in reality, a law firm is like a big machine, and it only functions well when everyone is supporting each other and working toward a common goal."

Robbins Geller's Sanchez said that it's important to think beyond the needs of your individual case to the firm's greater needs. "Also—and this should be a mantra—prepare, prepare, prepare. It's the not-so-secret secret sauce," he said.

Daroci of Seeger Weiss said the best lawyers work hard, take ownership of their cases and are proactive: They don't merely think of assignments in terms of checking off a to-do list. "Think about how your work fits into the larger litigation strategy, take initiative and anticipate follow-up issues," he said.

Labaton's Buell, meanwhile, said that it's critical for young lawyers to learn from defeat. He said one of his favorite quotes comes from Captain Jean-Luc Picard, the character portrayed by Sir Patrick Stewart in "Star Trek: The Next Generation," who said: "It is possible to commit no mistakes and still lose. That is not a weakness. That is life."

Buell said some of his biggest professional successes in litigation and business development have come out of defeat. "I was able to shake off a loss or failure, move on from it, learn from it and apply those lessons learned in winning the next motion or getting the next client," he said.

Simmons

Simmons is also exploring a strategic alliance in China to strengthen its presence in Asia alongside its expansion in the Middle East, according to Monastiriotis. An announcement is expected later this year.

"We're actively investing in the region," she said. "The bridge between Asia and the Middle East is becoming increasingly important, which is why we're sharpening our focus on both."

Monastiriotis noted that the growing connectivity between the two regions has become a key differentiator for Simmons, especially as many U.S. firms scale back in Asia. Simmons continues to see Asia as a major strategic priority.

In October, lawyers from Simmons' Shanghai office moved to its allied Chinese firm YaoWang. At the time, the firm said it planned to build the practice, in conjunction with YaoWang, through lateral hires and by developing talent internally.

AI & Fintech

Middle East regional head Muneer Khan is expected to lead the Abu Dhabi office.

"Abu Dhabi is also investing heavily in AI, technology, and fintech," Khan said. "So, ADGM aligns very closely with our clients' needs."

The team is expected to include senior lawyers and, eventually, local hires.

"We're unable to say at this stage who will be the lawyers," Khan said, adding that the team will likely have strong relationships with clients including the Abu Dhabi Investment Authority (ADIA) and Masdar.

Last year, Simmons led advisory work on Masdar's €3.2 billion acquisition of Terna Energy and, in 2023, advised the ADIA fund on a $100 million repo transaction supporting a facility designed to improve trading of African government bonds and encourage investment in sustainable development projects across Africa.

Following President Donald Trump's March trip to the Middle East, the UAE committed to investing $1.4 trillion in the U.S. over the next decade with a focus on AI, one of Simmons' core sectors.

With offices in Riyadh and Dubai, Simmons has 47 lawyers in the region including 12 partners, according to the firm's website.

A Strategic Return

Simmons initially opened an Abu Dhabi office in 1994 but cut back in 2012 and shut down following a strategic review during a downturn in oil prices. Latham & Watkins and legacy Herbert Smith Freehills also closed their Abu Dhabi offices in the early 1990s.

Simmons' return comes as rival firms also strengthen their offering in the emirate's capital. Skadden Arps Meagher & Flom, Paul Hastings, and Addleshaw Goddard have launched in Abu Dhabi this year, while A&O Shearman, Baker McKenzie and others already have a presence there.

Meanwhile, Simmons opened its Saudi office in June, hiring partner Umera Ali to boost its banking capabilities. Ed Crosse, a commercial disputes partner, is set to relocate from London to Dubai in late August. It is unclear if he will also work out of Simmons' Abu Dhabi office. Crosse declined to comment other than to say he was moving to Dubai.

Among their Middle East mandates, Simmons has advised Harbin Electric International, one of China's largest power engineering groups, on negotiating turnkey EPC contracts for Saudi Arabia's Rumah II and Nairyah II greenfield combined-cycle gas-fired power projects. The projects have a total value of $3.6 billion.

Simmons ranked 87th in the 2024 Global 200 (the latest figures available) with about 1,080 attorneys, including 189 partners, according to ALM Compass data.

Judicial Ethics

Opinions From the Advisory Committee on Judicial Ethics

The Advisory Committee on Judicial Ethics responds to written inquiries from New York state's approximately 3,600 judges and justices, as well as hundreds of judicial hearing officers, support magistrates, court attorney-referees, and judicial candidates (both judges and non-judges seeking election to judicial office). The committee interprets the Rules Governing Judicial Conduct (22 NYCRR Part 100) and, to the extent applicable, the Code of Judicial Conduct. The committee consists of 28 current and retired judges, and is co-chaired by the Honorable Debra L. Givens, an acting justice of the supreme court in Erie County, and the Honorable Lillian Wan, an associate justice of the appellate division, second department.

Opinion: 25-41

Digest: A court attorney-referee who is a member of a not-for-profit community chorus: (1) may not sell tickets to fund-raising events to friends or members of the public, but may sell tickets to family members; (2) may serve on the entity's board of directors and assist in planning fund-raising activities, provided he/she is not personally involved in soliciting funds; and (3) may not perform in fund-raising concerts.

Rules: 22 NYCRR 100.2; 100.2(A); 100.4(A)(1)-(3); 100.4(C)(3)(a)(i)-(ii); 100.4(C)(3)(b)(i), (iv); 100.6(A); Opinions 24-120; 23-240; 23-213; 23-140; 22-79; 21-109; 21-47; 20-57; 19-136; 01-109; 92-79.

Opinion: The inquiring court attorney-referee is a member of a community-based chorus, organized as a not-for-profit cultural, civic or charitable organization, which provides "education and advocacy for the LGBTQIA+ community, mainly through music and art." The referee asks if he/she may sell tickets to the organization's fund-raising events and serve on its board of directors.

As quasi-judicial officials, court attorney-referees must comply with the Rules Governing Judicial Conduct in performing their duties and must otherwise use the Rules as guides to their conduct "so far as practical and appropriate" (22 NYCRR 100.6[A]). A judge must always avoid even the appearance of impropriety and act in a matter that promotes public confidence in the judiciary's integrity and impartiality (see 22 NYCRR 100.2; 100.2[A]). A judge may participate in extra-judicial activities that are compatible with judicial office and do not cast reasonable doubt on the judge's impartiality, detract from dignity of office, or interfere with judicial duties (see 22 NYCRR 100.4[A][1]-[3]). A judge may be an officer or director of a not-for-profit educational, charitable, cultural, fraternal, or civic organization, provided it is unlikely to be engaged in proceedings that would ordinarily come before the judge (see 22 NYCRR 100.4[C][3][a][i]) and, if the judge is full-time, it is also unlikely to be regularly engaged in adversarial proceedings "in any court" (22 NYCRR 100.4[C][3][a][ii]). A judge "may assist" such an organization in "planning fund-raising" but must not "personally participate in the solicitation of funds or other fund-raising activities" (22 NYCRR 100.4[C][3][b][i]). Likewise, a judge may not "use or permit the use of judicial office for fund-raising or membership solicitation" (22 NYCRR 100.4[C][3][b][iv]).

1. Selling Tickets to Fund-Raisers

A judge or quasi-judicial official may not personally participate in fund-raising, and thus may not sell tickets to fund-raising events (see e.g. Opinions 22-79; 01-109). We have recognized a narrow exception for family members based on the "clear and powerful motivation" of the familial relationship and the judge's unambiguous disqualification from hearing their cases (Opinion 22-79).

Accordingly, the inquirer may not sell tickets to the organization's fund-raising concerts to friends or other members of the public, but may sell tickets to "family members within the sixth degree of relationship without reference to [his/her quasi-judicial] position" (id. [citation and internal quotation marks omitted]).

2. Service on the Board of Directors

Subject to certain restrictions, a judge may serve on the board of not-for-profit organizations that provide community-based educational programs (see e.g. Opinions 23-213 [educational and cultural programs connected with local park]; 21-109 [educational programs for children and adults with autism]). A judge may also "serve on boards of a wide variety of not-for-profit arts-related organizations" (Opinion 19-136) or "not-for-profit organizations committed to promoting and raising awareness for certain common interests" (Opinion 21-47). As always, the restrictions include a broad prohibition on personal participation in fund-raising activities (see e.g. Opinion 24-120). For example, a judge may not post announcements about an organization's fund-raising events on social media to generate awareness (see Opinion 23-140).

The inquirer may likewise serve on the board of this not-for-profit organization and assist in "planning fund-raising," provided he/she does not personally participate in soliciting funds or other fund-raising activities (22 NYCRR 100.4[C][3][b][i]) and does not permit the use of judicial prestige for fund-raising or membership solicitation (see 22 NYCRR 100.4[C][3][b][iv]).[1]

3. Performance at Fund-Raising Concerts

We have advised that a judge may not perform in a rock band's annual benefit concert, even if the judge's name and judicial status will be omitted from advertisements (see Opinion 22-79); may not perform as a volunteer pianist during a charitable fund-raiser (see Opinion 23-240); may not "take an acting part" in a theatrical performance to raise funds for his/her house of worship (see Opinion 20-57); and may not make a "cameo appearance" in a play which is a charitable fund-raising event (see Opinion 92-79).

Thus, we conclude that the inquiring court attorney-referee should perform only in events that are not fund-raisers. He/she may not perform in fund-raising concerts.

1. For completeness, we note that the referee "may be listed as an officer, director or trustee" of the organization, and use of the entity's "regular letterhead" for fund-raising or membership solicitation does not violate the Rules, provided the letterhead lists only the referee's name and position in the organization (22 NYCRR 100.4[C][3][b][iv]).

Opinion: 25-42

Digest: (1) A court attorney referee may accompany his/her minor child to an annual Pride Parade celebrating the culture and history of the lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer, intersex, and asexual (LGBTQIA) community. (2) We cannot provide blanket guidance about attending a "protest rally" in support of LGBTQIA rights, as the answer requires fact-specific determinations

Rules: 22 NYCRR 100.2; 100.2(A); 100.5(A)(1); 100.5(A)(1)(g); 100.6(A); Opinions 24-60; 23-133; 22-160; 22-126; 16-85; 06-147; 04-144; 91-55; 96-148.

Opinion: The inquiring court attorney-referee asks if he/she may attend either an unspecified "protest rally" in support of LGBTQIA rights or an annual community Pride Parade together with his/her minor child. The inquirer proposes to do so solely in his/her capacity as a parent, and expects to remain anonymous.

As quasi-judicial officials, court attorney-referees must comply with the Rules Governing Judicial Conduct in performing their official duties and otherwise must "so far as practical and appropriate" use the Rules to guide their conduct (22 NYCRR 100.6[A]). Like judges, they must avoid even the appearance of impropriety (see 22 NYCRR 100.2) and always act to promote public confidence in the judiciary's integrity and impartiality (see 22 NYCRR 100.2[A]). They also must not "directly or indirectly engage in any political activity" unless an exception applies (see 22 NYCRR 100.5[A][1]). For example, a judge or quasi-judicial official who is not in his/her window period must not attend political gatherings (22 NYCRR 100.5[A][1][g]; Opinion 22-126).

We note, initially, that a judge or quasi-judicial official "may not engage anonymously in otherwise prohibited political activity" (Opinion 16-85). Nor is there any exception permitting a judge or quasi-judicial official to attend an otherwise impermissible event "as a volunteer chaperone for students" (Opinion 24-60).

Community Pride Parade

We have advised that "judges may march in parades sponsored by municipalities or by civic, charitable, ethnic, cultural, or other not-for-profit organizations unless the parades are inseparable from the sponsoring organizations' fund-raising initiatives" (Opinion 06-147). Thus, for example, judges may march in a "community parade" celebrating both "a county bi-centennial and the end of the war in the Persian Gulf" (Opinion 91-55). Likewise, a judge may serve as a Grand Marshal or Deputy Grand Marshal in a St. Patrick's Day parade, which is organized as "a community event" rather than a fund-raiser (see Opinions 04-144; 96-148).

We see no reason for a different result with respect to a community parade that celebrates the culture and history of the LGBTQIA community. Accordingly, the inquirer may accompany his/her minor child to an annual Pride Parade.

Unspecified Protest Rally

Whether a judge or quasi-judicial official may participate in a protest, rally, march, or demonstration involves a fact-specific determination. As explained in Opinion 22-160 (internal quotations and citations omitted):

> [W]e have declined to state categorically whether judges may participate, without speaking, in a local rally, march or demonstration sponsored by grassroots organizations. However, we opined that such events would generally be prohibited political activity, subject to specific facts fitting within a narrow exception to the blanket prohibition.

We likewise declined to provide blanket guidance about attending public events that invite participants to "stand with Israel," as we must consider "factors such as the identity of the sponsor(s), the actual focus and purpose of the event, the location of the event, and other matters" (Opinion 23-133).

Here, too, we cannot provide blanket guidance about attending an unspecified "protest rally" in support of LGBTQIA rights but must instead await a particularized inquiry about a specific known event.

Advisers

tium that bought out U.K. financial services group Hargreaves Lansdown, collected an estimated $13.7 million, according to a regulatory document seen by Law.com International.

Trailing closely behind, Freshfields took second place with $55.8 billion in deal value and a 35% market share from 45 transactions. Freshfields advised a private equity consortium, led by U.S. PE house Blackstone, on a €14 billion offer for Oslo-listed Adevinta back in 2023.

Linklaters rounded out the top three, advising on $44 billion worth of deals, capturing 28% of the market across 24 mandates.

Clifford Chance and Cleary Gottlieb Steen & Hamilton secured the fourth and fifth spots, respectively, while Sullivan & Cromwell and Latham & Watkins followed closely, the latter notably advising on 84 deals—the second-highest by volume—but ranking seventh by value with $28.7 billion.

The data reflects the ongoing dominance of transatlantic legal powerhouses in cross-border private equity transactions, as U.S. sponsors continue to target European assets.

In total, legal advisors were involved in $145.8 billion worth of deals, accounting for 91.83% of the $158.8 billion industry total across 1,927 transactions. Deals without disclosed legal counsel represented just over $13 billion, or 8.17% of total deal value, the data also specified.

One standout is Italian domestic Gatti Pavesi Bianchi, which entered the top ten with a single blockbuster deal worth $23.6 billion, landing it in eighth position. The deal in question saw the firm advise KKR on its muti-billion infrastructure bid for Telecom Italia, making it the first telecoms group in a major European country to part ways with its landline grid.

Paul, Weiss Rifkind Wharton & Garrison and domestic Chinese firm Fangda Partners completed the top 10.

U.S. private equity has been circling a number of large U.K. and E.U. companies in recent months. Blackstone looks set to win the bidding war for U.K.-listed property company Warehouse REIT, having put in a new bid of £489 million just today.

Meanwhile, rival U.S. PE firms Advent and KKR have been engaged in a bidding war for FTSE 250 listed Spectris, which looks set to be sold for close to $5 billion.

Tax

remains subject to special rules and limitations.

• The OBBB Act is now law, and the uncertainty regarding the expiration of the TCJA has been resolved. Sponsors will probably need to update their offering plans to disclose the changes stemming from the OBBB Act, as summarized above.

What's the Takeaway?

The OBBB Act provides noteworthy and, in some cases, enhanced tax benefits for many condominium owners, while maintaining or modifying many of the limitations introduced by the TCJA.

Purchasers and existing condominium unit owners should consult with their tax advisors to understand how these changes may affect their individual tax situations.

The changes under the OBBB Act will almost certainly require an update to existing offering plans; for new offering plans, the form of attorney income tax opinion letter must reflect the changes so purchasers understand how the OBBB Act affects their purchase decisions.

Summary Table of Key Provisions

Provision	Pre-TCJA Law	TCJA (2018–2025)	OBBB Act (2025 and beyond)
Standard Deduction (Joint)	~$13,000	$24,000	$31,500

Home Equity Interest	Deductible	Not deductible	Deductible under some circumstances
SALT Deduction Cap	No cap	$10,000	$40,000 (adjusted upward through 2029, then $10,000)

Order

and Washington sued Trump, the United States, the Department of Interior, Secretary Douglas Burgum and other federal agencies and officials responsible for implementation of the Wind Order, seeking declaratory and injunctive relief.

ACE NY, a not-for-profit organization that advocates for the development of renewable energy and whose members include companies involved in wind and solar development and operation, successfully moved to intervene.

Plaintiffs initially sought injunctive relief, but at a June 5 hearing the court unexpectedly converted the administration's opposition to the motion for a preliminary injunction to a motion to dismiss.

The court also pressed the states to provide additional information on the harms presented by the Wind Order—an issue that goes to the states' standing—and the statutes violated by its implementation. Plaintiffs subsequently amended their complaints and all parties filed supplemental briefing to address these issues.

At the core of plaintiffs' complaints are claims that agency officials are violating the APA by implementing the Wind Order. Specifically, plaintiffs allege that implementation of the Wind Order is arbitrary and capricious (5 U.S.C. §706(2)(A)) to the extent the administration offered no reasoned basis for pausing all wind approvals, and that such pause directly contradicts a separate executive order which declared a "national energy emergency."

They also allege that its implementation is contrary to law and in excess of authority (§706(2)(A), (C)) since implementing an indefinite pause on approvals clearly violates statutory and regulatory requirements, such as the APA's requirement that agencies complete congressionally mandated reviews and issue decisions within a "reasonable time." FAC at ¶ 415 (quoting 5 USC §558(c)).

ACE NY also alleges that the order violates the APA's notice and comment requirement because an indefinite pause is a substantive rule under the circumstances. Plaintiffs also brought equitable, common law and citizen suit claims, and ACE NY also brought a constitutional claim (alleging that the Wind Order violated the separation of powers), all of which were dismissed for reasons that are beyond the scope of this article.

The Decision

The court denied the defendant's motion to dismiss as to all the APA claims. Defendants' had argued that (i) the states lacked the injury-in-fact, and redressability needed for standing and (ii) the indefinite pause was not a final agency action subject to the APA, among other unsuccessful lines of attack.

The court's ultimate rejection of these arguments should come as no surprise for the reasons that follow.

> New York has made substantial investments in encouraging the development of utility scale onshore and offshore wind, and related supply chains.

Injury: Federal courts have long recognized that states concerned about the adverse impacts of federal action on specific state interests have standing to sue, including in multiple cases in which states had challenged President Joe Biden's energy orders. See, e.g., Louisiana v. Biden, 622 F. Supp. 3d 267 (W.D. La. 2022) (holding that Louisiana and twelve other states had standing to challenge a Biden Executive Order that indefinitely paused oil and gas leasing because they faced imminent injury in the form of lost lease revenues, job losses and economic damage, that were fairly traceable to the order and could be cured by an injunction).

Here, spurred on by the court, the administration argued that the states lacked any direct or non-speculative injury.

However, the court found that the states had alleged direct harms comparable to the harms recognized in Louisiana v. Biden, like lost revenues, jobs and economic damage, as well as unique harms like "energy reliability and affordability problems due to reliance on the regulatory regimes the Wind [Order] has interrupted, and difficulty meeting state statutory emission-reduction goals meant to benefit the states' residents."

The court also noted that, in the alternative, the states had standing pursuant to the "special solicitude" afforded to states that "seek to assert a congressionally bestowed procedural right" via the APA where the challenged action impacts the "states' quasi-sovereign interests" such as local revenues.

Redressability: The administration also argued that redressability was too speculative in that the States could not be sure any specific project would receive all required approvals.

The court dismissed that argument as misstating the law; "'those adversely affected by a discretionary agency decision generally have standing to complain that the agency based its decision upon an improper legal ground,'" regardless of whether or not the agency might ultimately "reach the same result through different reasoning." (quoting Federal Election Comm'n v. Akins, 524 U.S. 11, 25 (1998)).

Finality: Defendants argued that Plaintiffs' APA claims should be dismissed because there was no final agency action subject to APA review. The court held otherwise. In order to be deemed "final" an action must be "the consummation of the agency's decision-making process" and "one …from which legal consequences flow." (citing Bennett v. Spear, 520 U.S. 154, 178 (1997)).

Relying once again on Louisiana v Biden, and several other cases involving indefinite pauses or moratoria, see, e.g., Natural Resources Defense Council v. Wheeler, 955 F.3d 68 (D.C. Cir. 2020); Clean Air Council v. Pruitt, 862 F.3d 1, 6 (D.C. Cir. 2016), the court found that agency officials' implementation of the indefinite pause on approvals for wind projects, now over five months old with no end in sight, was a de facto final action with concrete legal consequences.

In so holding the court stated that agency action "cannot be exempted from judicial review merely by being characterized as 'intermediate.'"

As to legal consequences, the court observed that the Wind Order "in effect amends several regulations by requiring that the agencies must not follow the usual, specified procedures for an unspecified period of time, enacting a kind of de facto suspension of the law with respect to wind energy development," a move that has real world consequences.

With the court having rejected the administration's threshold arguments in line with decisions of sister courts, the case moved to summary judgment, with briefs due in August and arguments scheduled for early September.

In the meantime, each day the indefinite pause remains in place, the injury to New York and the other plaintiffs will be real.

FARA

traditional espionage by foreign government actors." Going forward, she instructed DOJ to "focus on civil enforcement, regulatory initiatives, and public guidance" in connection with FARA.

On June 25, 2025, the DOJ filed two indictments that exemplify the types of criminal prosecutions that we may expect DOJ to still pursue under this revised approach.

In these cases, DOJ alleges that the defendants acted as agents of the Chinese Ministry of State Security ("MSS"), directed to "carry out various clandestine operations in the United States, including facilitating a [] payment of cash on behalf of the MSS, gathering intelligence about U.S. Navy Service members and bases, and assisting with efforts to recruit other potential MSS assets from within the U.S. military." See United States v. Lai, No. 4:25-cr-00186 (N.D. Cal.), ECF No. 1; United States v. Lal, No. 4:25-mj-00404 (S.D. Tex.). These allegations certainly track AG Bondi's directive that FARA enforcement focuses on cases involving "traditional espionage by foreign government actors."

At the same time, unlike the Trump Administration's priorities on crypto cases—the SEC has dropped several prominent enforcement actions, such as those against Ripple, Coinbase and Kraken—DOJ does not appear to be routinely dropping previously filed FARA prosecutions.

Former CIA analyst Sue Mi Terry was indicted during the prior administration for allegedly acting as an unregistered agent of the South Korean government when she, according to the indictment, "advocated [South Korean] policy positions, including in published articles and during media appearances, disclosed nonpublic U.S. Government information to [South Korean] intelligence officers, and facilitated access for [South Korean] Government officials to U.S. Government officials." See United States v. Terry, No. 24-cr-00427 (S.D.N.Y.).

While some of the allegations in the Terry case arguably track A.G. Bondi's reference to "traditional espionage," DOJ has maintained other prosecutions that do not clearly do so. For example, the prosecutions against Congressman David Rivera for alleged lobbying to remove a Venezuelan principal from the U.S. sanctions list (United States v. Rivera, No. 4-cr-00570 (D.D.C.)), and against two Russian nationals for working to fund pro-Russian media (United States v. Kalashnikov, No. 24-cr-00519 (S.D.N.Y.)) both remain pending.

DOJ also recently defeated a motion to dismiss brought by Linda Sun, who served in many roles in the New York government between 2012 and 2023, including as deputy chief diversity officer for Andrew Cuomo and deputy chief of staff to Kathy Hochul. See United States v. Sun, 2025 WL 1296456 (S.D.N.Y. May 5, 2025).

Sun is alleged to have acted on behalf of the Chinese government while in those roles; for example, Sun allegedly "worked to prevent representatives of the Taiwanese government from meeting with highly-ranked NYS officials," "worked…to shape the public statements of Politican-1 and Politician-2 to align with the PRC government's political priorities," "obtained and publicly presented an official NYS proclamation for PRC Official-1 without authorization from her employer," and "attempted to arrange visits by Henan provincial officials to the United States to meet with NYS officials, as well as a visit by Politician-2 to the PRC." (Id. at *3.)

She is alleged to have continued acting on behalf of activity even after the "FBI advised Sun that her activities could be a violation of FARA" during a voluntary interview in 2020. (Id. at *7.)

Unlike the prosecutions in Lal and Lai, Sun's alleged conduct sounds less in the vein of traditional espionage described in AG Bondi's memorandum, and more like the lobbying at issue in other FARA cases.

Legislation

While the Attorney General's memo will no doubt change DOJ's approach to FARA enforcement, it is not the only shifting piece of the landscape. Rather, legislative changes to the substantive requirements of FARA may also be on the horizon. FARA reform is a perennial and often bipartisan effort in Congress, and the current session is no exception. Earlier this year, members of Congress, with bipartisan support, introduced several FARA-related measures, which remain in committee. Versions of these bills were introduced in prior sessions, and some passed in the Senate, but none have made it to the President's desk yet.

The Foreign Agents Transparency Act (H.R.3229, S.981) would authorize DOJ to retroactively require FARA registration. This bill is designed to overturn Att'y Gen. of United States v. Wynn, 104 F.4th 348 (D.C. Cir. 2024), in which the D.C. Circuit held that there is no continuing obligation to register under FARA if representation of a foreign principal has ceased. Thus, if this act were to pass, individuals and companies that previously acted on behalf of foreign actors within the past five years may be required to register under FARA.

The Lobbying Disclosure Improvement Act (H.R.1887, S.865) seeks to narrow the so-called Lobbying Disclosure Act (LDA) exemption, which permits an individual to avoid registering under FARA if they have registered under the LDA, so long as they are not an agent of a foreign government or political party. LDA registration is often perceived as being less onerous than FARA registration, and this exemption has been criticized as little more than a loophole to FARA. This bill would not eliminate the exemption, but would require individuals who seek to avoid FARA registration by registering under the LDA to disclose as much in their LDA registration. The practical effect of this amendment would be to highlight for DOJ individuals who are seeking to lobby on behalf of foreign governments without providing the full panoply of information under FARA, which may trigger suspicion in certain circumstances (such as work on behalf of certain foreign governments).

The Disclosing Foreign Influence in Lobbying Act (H.R.1883, S.856) would also amend the LDA, and require registrants to disclose that foreign governments or political parties are involved in the "direction, planning, supervision, or control of any lobbying activities of the registrant." This bill is designed to prevent foreign governments and political parties from using organizations registered under the LDA as undisclosed proxies.

State legislatures have also gotten in on the game. Arkansas, Texas, Nebraska and Louisiana have all passed so-called "Baby FARA" laws in 2025, and Arizona, California, Georgia, Oklahoma, and Tennessee introduced similar bills in 2024. These laws borrow from FARA, but often differ in significant ways.

The laws enacted in Arkansas, Texas, Nebraska and Louisiana, for example, only apply to agents from certain countries, such as China, Russia, Iran, Cuba, and North Korea. And many of the enacted and proposed laws also do not contain the same exemptions, such as the LDA exemption discussed above, or the commercial exemption, under which trade or commercial interest of a foreign principal benefit from the exemption "so long as the activities do not directly promote the public or political interests of the foreign government." 28 CFR §5.304(b).

In other words, even if activities may be exempt from registration under federal law and thus not subject to federal enforcement under FARA, they may still trigger obligations under state law that could lead to enforcement by state authorities.

Conclusion

FARA appears to be at yet another moment of flux in its 85year evolution. On the enforcement side, the DOJ is signaling a retreat from broad criminal application, but may still maintain aggressive civil enforcement, especially if DOJ goes forward with its proposed narrowing of the commercial exemption (which we wrote about in January).

Proposed federal legislation may increase registration requirements, and an increase in state legislation may open entirely new areas of compliance concerns for companies. As a result, it would be a mistake to take Attorney General Bondi's memo as a free pass, and companies and individuals involved with foreign interests—whether commercial or political—must remain vigilant.

And of course, as history has shown repeatedly, how FARA is deployed can shift based on the administration in power.

As a result, companies would be wise to stay attuned to regulatory and legislative outcomes, and consult legal counsel to ensure that their compliance programs properly address the shifting regulatory terrain.

U.S. BANKRUPTCY COURT WESTERN DISTRICT

U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit Is Accepting Applications for Western District Bankruptcy Judge

Application Deadine is Aug. 7

The United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit invites applications from qualified candidates for a 14-year appointment as United States Bankruptcy Judge for the Western District of New York, with a duty station in Rochester, New York. The selection process will be confidential and competitive. Applicants will be considered without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, sexual orientation, or disability.

The current annual salary of a United States Bankruptcy Judge is $227,608.

The Second Circuit uses an open and competitive selection process. All applications are screened by a Merit Selection Committee. The Committee will review applicants using the following criteria: legal competence evidenced by experience with complex legal issues; an aptitude for legal scholarship and writing; familiarity with the courts and court processes; commitment to equal justice under the law; characteristics indicative of a sound judicial temperament; a reputation for integrity, good character and ethical behavior; and physical and mental health sufficient to meet the demands and tenure of the position. The Merit Selection Committee will select a limited number of applicants for interview and will conduct appropriate due diligence inquiries into the candidates' backgrounds and qualifications. Upon a majority vote of the Second Circuit Judicial Council, the Council will forward the Merit Selection Committee's Report with any recommendations or comments to the active judges of the Court of Appeals. The selected nominee will be required to satisfy FBI and IRS background investigations prior to appointment.

COURT NOTES

Basic qualifications for consideration include:
1. Membership in good standing of at least one state bar, the District of Columbia bar, or the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico bar, and never other than membership in good standing of every bar of which the applicant has been a member; and
2. A minimum of five years of legal practice experience.

Application forms are posted on the Court's website at http://www.ca2.uscourts.gov.

Completed application packages must be in the format required by the Second Circuit and received no later than August 7, 2025.

Application Deadline is Aug. 7

The United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit invites applications from qualified candidates for a 14-year appointment as United States Bankruptcy Judge for the Eastern District of New York. There are two vacancies in the Eastern District of New York, one in Brooklyn and one in Central Islip. Applicants should identify in their cover letter whether they wish to be considered for Brooklyn, Central Islip, or both. The selection process will be confidential and competitive. Applicants will be considered without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, sexual orientation, or disability.

The current annual salary of a United States Bankruptcy Judge is $227,608.

The Second Circuit uses an open and competitive selection process. All applications are screened by a Merit Selection Committee. The Committee will review applicants using the following criteria: legal competence evidenced by experience with complex legal issues; an aptitude for legal scholarship and writing; familiarity with the courts and court processes; commitment to equal justice under the law; characteristics indicative of a sound judicial temperament; a reputation for integrity, good character and ethical behavior; and physical and mental health sufficient to meet the demands and tenure of the position. The Merit Selection Committee will select a limited number of applicants for interview and will conduct appropriate due diligence inquiries into the candidates' backgrounds and qualifications. Upon a majority vote of the Second Circuit Judicial Council, the Council will forward the Merit Selection Committee's Report with any recommendations or comments to the active judges of the Court of Appeals. The selected nominee will be required to satisfy FBI and IRS background investigations prior to appointment.

Basic qualifications for consideration include:
1. Membership in good standing of at least one state bar, the District of Columbia bar, or the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico bar, and never other than membership in good standing of every bar of which the applicant has been a member; and
2. A minimum of five years of legal practice experience.

Application forms are posted on the Court's website at http://www.ca2.uscourts.gov.

Completed application packages must be in the format required by the Second Circuit and received no later than August 7, 2025.

U.S. DISTRICT COURT EASTERN DISTRICT

Criminal Justice Act Committee Is Accepting Applications

Deadline is Sept. 8

The Criminal Justice Act Committee of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York is accepting new applications for appointment, and applications for reappointment, to the panel of attorneys under the Criminal Justice Act of 1964, through September 8, 2025. The Court encourages highly qualified and experienced criminal defense attorneys who reflect the diversity of the community to apply for membership on the CJA Panel for the District. Assignments to the Panel will be for a three-year period, beginning January 1, 2026. Applicants must be admitted and in good standing to practice in the Eastern District of New York.

Applications may be submitted for assignment to the Brooklyn or Central Islip panels, or both. The Committee is also seeking applications from practitioners whose experience is uniquely suited to handling petitions for post-conviction relief.

All application forms, instructions, and submission information are available on the Court's website at:

https://www.nyed.uscourts.gov/criminal-justice-act-info

New applications and applications for reappointment, along with all supporting documents, must be submitted in one flattened PDF file, no later than September 8, 2025, by electronic submission via the Court's website.

Please contact the Clerk of Court at 718-613-2270 if you experience difficulty uploading an application.

ADMINISTRATIVE ORDER OF THE CHIEF JUDGE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK

Pursuant to article VI, § 28(c) of the New York State Constitution and section 211 of the Judiciary Law, upon consultation with the Administrative Board of the Courts, and with the approval of the Court of Appeals of the State of New York, I hereby amend, effective July 7, 2025, sections 24.6(g), (n) and 25.18 of the Rules of the Chief Judge, by adding the underlined material and removing the [bracketed] material, to read as follows:

PART 24. TIME AND LEAVE

Section 24.6. Other Leaves With Pay

(g) Conferences. Four days' leave per annum without charge to an employee's leave credits may be allowed to attend conferences of recognized professional organizations. Such conferences must be directly related to the employee's profession [of] or professional duties. This leave is subject to the prior approval of the administrative authority and to the staffing needs of the court or agency.

(n) The Chief Administrator of the Courts or [his or his] their designee may grant leaves with pay for reasons not itemized in this Part.

PART 25. CAREER SERVICE

Section 25.18. Establishment of a Continuing Eligible List

The Chief Administrator of the Courts may establish a continuing eligible list for any class of positions for which [inadequate numbers of qualified persons are found available for recruitment or appointment] such lists are appropriate. The Chief Administrator may only establish continuing eligible lists for any class of positions filled through open competitive examination. Names of eligibles shall be inserted in such list from time to time as applicants are tested and found qualified in examinations held at such intervals as may be prescribed by the Chief Administrator. Such successive examinations shall, so far as practicable, be constructed and rated so as to be equivalent tests of the merit and fitness of candidates. The name of any candidate who passes any such examination and who is otherwise qualified shall be placed on the continuing eligible list in the rank corresponding to his or her final rating on such examination. The period of eligibility of successful candidates for certification and appointment from such continuing eligible list, as a result of any such examination, shall be fixed by the Chief Administrator but, except as a list may reach an announced terminal date, such period shall not be less than one year; nor shall such period of eligibility exceed four years, except as provided in section 25.17 of this Part. Subject to such conditions and limitations as the Chief Administrator may prescribe, a candidate may take more than one such examination; provided, however, that no such candidate shall be certified simultaneously with more than one rank on the continuing eligible list. With respect to any candidate who applies for and is granted additional credit in any such examination as a disabled or nondisabled veteran, and for the limited purpose of granting such additional credit, the eligible list shall be deemed to be established on the date on which his or her name is added thereto.

Chief Judge of the State of New York
